International Register and Checklist of Cultivar names in the Genus Syringa L. (Oleaceae) (“Work-in-Progress” Lilac Register)

For information on title, copyright, address, table of content, acknowledgements, historical overview, and introduction see Introductory Pages.

RELEASE NOTE: This release includes updates to the main Register PDF file, and is the first update since the October 1, 2023, update. This update has several Korean unestablished cultivars included from Shingu Botanic Garden, plus other new cultivars from Morley, Magi, Sagitova, and the Russian Lilac group, and a number of minor corrections and additions. An updated Appendix F and Table 3 have also been included.

A Word file with track changes enabled showing changes from the last release is available upon request from the Registrar. Publicly posted releases are in locked PDF format but are available for copy and print; an unlocked PDF is available on request by recognized institutions and collectors. A custom Excel file developed by the ILS and suitable for sorting is available to its members on its website.

Introductory notes concerning the entries in the Register and Checklist.

The Register and Checklist contains all cultivar names known to the Registrar, and many designations that may be interpreted erroneously as being cultivar names.

The name of a cultivar or Group consists of the name of the genus or lower taxonomic unit to which it is assigned together with a cultivar or Group epithet. The name may be written in a variety of equivalent ways (ICNCP-2016, Article 8.1)¹. Syringa ‘Excel’, Syringa ×hyacinthiflora ‘Excel’, lilac ‘Excel’, sering ‘Excel’ (in Dutch), lilas ‘Excel’ (in French), and Flieder ‘Excel’ (in German) are names for the same cultivar.

A trade designation is not a name but is a device that is usually used for marketing a cultivar or Group in place of its accepted name when the accepted name is not considered suitable for marketing purposes (ICNCP-2016, Article 13). Trade designations, including trademarks, appear in small capital letters (e.g., LUDWIG SPAETH). Trade designations, including trademarks, must be distinguished typographically with no quotes and are always to be cited together with, or in juxtaposition to, the accepted name (ICNCP-2016, Article 17) (e.g., Syringa LUDWIG SPAETH [‘Andenken an Ludwig Späth’], or TINKERBELLE™ [‘Bailbelle’]).

Diacritical marks are an integral part of certain languages such as French, German, Latvian and Swedish, where they affect pronunciation. Neglecting umlauts is simply an orthographic error and changes the pronunciation of a name or word; neglecting diacritical marks is unnecessary and awkward, although sometimes convenient for an English keyboard.

Cultivar names originally published in Cyrillic script have been transliterated. In accordance with Article 33 of the International Code of Nomenclature for Cultivated Plants-2016 transliterations in this publication are based on the 1997 edition, 2012 revision, of the *ALA-LC Romanization Tables*². Certain Cyrillic characters are transliterated to English by using two or more Latin characters, such as я = ya; ю = yu; ш = sh; ч = ch, and so on. Whenever this is the case the Latin characters have been underlined. For example, the Latin ya will transliterate to the Cyrillic я, rather than to the individual characters ы and а. The Latin transliteration of the Cyrillic character ш is underlined twice: shch, distinguishing it from ш = sh and ч = ch appearing side by side. This convention has been adopted from Charles Dragutin Holetich, Lilacs - Special Issue 11(2):1, International Lilac Society; 1982.

Each entry in the Register follows this pattern

Cultivar epithet followed by Group epithet if applicable and/or taxonomic unit.

Registered cultivar epithets appear in bold type (e.g., ‘Michel Buchner’); non-registered epithets appear in normal type (e.g. ‘Prairie Gem’). Since the initiation of the Register, only the established cultivar names in North America as of the 1953 Wister census were considered automatically Registered and in bold type. As of October 2023, a similar standard has now been applied to all established cultivar names from the entire world.

Cultivar names originally published in Cyrillic, Chinese, Korean, and Japanese have been transliterated (Romanized) or appear in pinyin. New registrations are currently being published in the RHS Cultivar Registration Bulletin at:

<https://fliphtml5.com/bookcase/hyez3>

Group names appear in round brackets (Villosae Group). This is the only Group name established, accepted and registered in the genus Syringa. For the definition of Villosae Group see Appendix F, summary of classification, Series Villosae.

Botanical names, here referred to as the “lower taxonomic unit”, appear in italics. This may vary from simply S. (for Syringa), to S. vulgaris (genus and species), S. oblata subsp. dilatata (genus, species and subspecies), S. vulgaris var. purpurea (genus, species and botanical variety), and S. ×hyacinthiflora (named interspecific hybrid or nothospecies).

Cultivar names originally published in Cyrillic, Chinese, Korean, or Japanese script have been recorded on an additional line (first added April 12, 2016).

² The American Library Association - Library of Congress Romanization Tables may be electronically downloaded from <http://lcweb.loc.gov/catdir/cpso/roman.html>

2nd and 3rd lines:

(May be preceded by the original language name). Originator and year followed by the 1953 Wister Color Code (for explanations see below). The color is usually chosen by the originator and may not be accurate. About 10% of colors include two or more colors. No bud colors are yet included in the Wister code line but are in the third color line.

Nota bene: The “year” is not always a reliable date; revisions are frequent, depending on information available.

The third line reflects additional inflorescence color information. This was obtained from digital extraction of a representative photograph for all cultivars in the 2020 ILS Photo & Color Database and is subject to the limitations of digital photographs and pixel extraction. Revisions are expected to occur and suggestions with documentation are welcome. Please note soil pH influences floral color which can differ from the description given by the hybridizer or Registry. Blue is more pronounced in alkaline soil while violet and purple are more pronounced in acidic soil.

RGB refers to the Red-Green-Blue digital colors of a computer monitor. RHS refers to the Royal Horticultural Society’s Colour Chart, Sixth Edition (2015). These are either assigned by the originator or derived from the RGB information. LCS refers to the Lilac Color System of DeBard, published in the ILS journal LILACS, Volume 48, Number 2 (Spring 2019), pp. 72-87. These are derived from the RGB information and assigned by the Registrar. It is in the following format:

1. RGB flower code with associated background color.
2. RGB bud code with associated background color.
3. RHS flower code.
4. RHS bud code.
5. LCS flower code.
6. LCS bud code.

Example:

163,156,197	202,143,181	N88D	77C	IX	XI

OR:

RGB flower	RGB bud	RHS flower	RHS bud	LCS flower	LCS bud
------------	---------	------------	---------	------------	---------

Named for Pierre Jean Demessemaeker [no dates], nurseryman and florist at Sint-Jans-Molenbeek, Belgium, and father-in-law of Grégoire Florent Stepman. Jean Demessemaeker founded his nursery in 1860; after Florent Stepman married Marie Josèphe Demessemaeker in 1889 the firm became known as Stepman-De Messemaeker.

Award: “Diplôme d’honneur au Meeting horticole de Bruxelles, 16 mai 1909”.

Cultivar name presumed registered 1953; name established and accepted.

Nota bene: Although the name of the cultivar appears originally as ‘M. J. De Messemaeker’, the version ‘Mons. J. De Messemaeker’ has been adopted since “M.” can be mistaken for an abbreviated first name.

Nota bene: Although in the literature consulted the name of the originator is mostly spelled “Stepman-De Messemaeker”, the 1889 marriage document shows the name as “Demessemaeker”. Additional evidence is the name of a street in Sint-Jans-Molenbeek: “Pierre Jean Demessemaekerstraat”.

Preston, Isabella, breeder’s designations and cultivar names

Note: Much Preston information came from her handwritten notes done by her about 1940-1943, obtained by the Registrar from Richard Hinchcliff, who got them from the “Preston Papers” at RBG-Burlington in 2012.

Note: Numbering system: first 2 numbers are the year of seedling. Second two numbers are a cohort, third two numbers are a specific seedling. 20.14 (270 seedlings) and 20.15 (29 seedlings) have S. villosa as the female seed parent and S. reflexa as male pollen parent. 20.03.01 is the only cultivar with S. villosa as male pollen parent and S. reflexa as female seed parent.

ROSENROT - see ‘Maiden's Blush’, Skinner 1966, S V

appeared as such in catalogs of Roskamp nurseries, Germany, and in their KIRCHER COLLECTION®, a selection of cultivars of the former Konrad Kircher nursery.

Kircher Baumschulen, Germany, applied for the ROSENROT trademark for marketing plants of ‘Maiden's Blush’; the application was rejected by the Bundessortenamt on grounds that ROSENROT is an adjective (color) in spite of the fact that it is also the name of a fairytale character. For the same reason ROSENROT would be rejected as a cultivar name (ICNCP 2009 Recommendation 21G).

Forcing cultivar in the Netherlands.

Nota bene:

When ‘Sensation’ is propagated by way of meristem cuttings (micropropagation) a small percentage of the plants produced will have rather unattractive off-white florets.

These are not sports, mutations or reversions; these are plants where the pigment-free cells, which appear white, form the upper layer of cells of the florets. Despite being rather unattractive plants, they are sometimes marketed as SENSATION SPORT, SPORT OF SENSATION, SENSATION WHITE REVERSION, SENSATION PICOT, etc.

Hoffman 2003

S. Villosae Group is based on the botanical series Villosae C.K. Schneider.

S. ‘Royalty’ has been designated nomenclatural standard for the Villosae Group.

The suggested way of writing cultivar names is: Genus (Group) ‘Cultivar’, e.g. Syringa (Villosae Group) ‘Royalty’. Users have the choice of leaving out the Group part, e.g. Syringa ‘Royalty’.
